As Pentasia's Regional Director for the Mediterranean Chris Vella explained "BetonMalta is an association that brings together two well established companies who both enjoy a pristine reputation in their respective fields.

"By offering the complete range of services required to establish a base on the island, BetonMalta allows investors and operators to stay focussed on their core business activities rather than having to waste time and money shopping around for several separate service providers.

Vella went on to say that, through its network of contacts, BetonMalta is also able to offer other services, like hosting, real estate and relocation assistance. "This is something that iGaming in the region has been requesting for some time." he added. "It is really exciting for Pentasia to be able to work with the team at Fenlex on this as the potential is enormous"
